MXOTECH SELECTED AS SPONSOR OF WBDC'S 2009 BUSINESS TECHNOLOGY MAKEOVER COMPETITION

Chicago, IL--(November 4, 2009)--MXOtech, an innovative IT consulting firm focusing on application development and network administration, was announced today as a participating sponsor in the 2009 Women's Business Development Center (WBDC) Makeover Competition.

The competition, held in conjunction with Microsoft and Comcast, will select the most deserving woman-owned company from among entrants to receive a prize package of up to $35,000 in free technology products and services. Entries will be judged by the sponsors on the strength of the owner's business or marketing plan, financial strength of the company, and the owner's explanation of how a technology makeover would strengthen her business productivity.

As an official sponsor, MXOtech will provide consultation and development of a Microsoft SharePoint portal for the winning firm. MXOtech has provided many clients with SharePoint solutions, drawing raves for its ability to reduce data entry processing and operational time and costs, as well as improved security, communication, and 'green' impact.

"We are delighted to be named a sponsor of the Makeover Competition," said MXOtech President Joanna Sobran. "As a woman-owned firm that has overcome our own challenges to reach the success we now enjoy, we are thrilled to be able to help other business owners overcome technology issues that may be barriers to their own success."
